Updated Services During COVID-19 For Clients and Employers

April, 2020

We're open online to serve you

On behalf of your local WorkBC Centre, we are reaching out to you regarding the current impact of COVID-19 (novel coronavirus), regarding our services and concerns as developments occur, and how this may impact your business.

We understand that things are in a state of constant change. We know you are trying to navigate the best options for your business operations, your employees and your customers. We also understand that this is not an easy process, given the rapidly changing circumstances.

As of March 19th, our WorkBC Centres closed in-person services for the health and safety of our communities. However, we remain open for business as much as possible while we work remotely. We are here to continue to provide the best support and services to assist with the needs for any of clients and businesses.

Connect with us

We encourage you to connect, should you require assistance with:

Hiring needs - both in immediacy, and long term

Employer Resources - to assist during COVID-19

Training that may be needed - to assist during current conditions

You have our commitment that we are here and will do our best to accommodate and answer any questions you may have regarding your needs and plans moving forward; we are here to be of service to you in any way possible. Including, providing ongoing updates, to best assist keeping you informed and up to date.

We need your feedback

Your input is critical in providing you the best service we can. Please take a moment to share with us what challenges you're currently facing: www.surveymonkey.com/r/WorkBC-CovidEmployerSupports
